-Richard Light

Welcome to our new online advisor development shell. As you can see, we have separate units for new advisors and continuing advisors as well as resources for all. Pertinent announcements for all will be posted in the Course Home section. All content is open to everyone.

New Advisors, please start working through the modules, they are Conceptual, Informational, and Relational. Each of these has a Part 1 and Part 2, please read and work through Part 1 in each, then start back with Part 2 of each. All articles are set up as discussions, please feel free to respond with comments or questions you have about the material.

There are scenarios with discussion questions in each that you need to respond to. When you have completed these, please start through the 'exams' in the New Advisor Evaluations module. I will be monitoring discussion responses and questions and will respond in that forum for all.

Please let me know if you have questions. The canvas format is new for us so let me know if you find glitches, etc.

Continuing advisors, our concentration has been on the new advisor portions, but we continue to add to this part and will focus on this in the coming year. Feel free to check out all parts, maybe refresh yourself on some of the info.

Thanks,
Karen Kratzer
