

Dare to know

Biographical Fiction

Fiction that depicts the lives of real people interspersed with fictional characters and events. Books in this genre are written in a narrative style that mimics the structure of a traditional biography, but with some fictional embellishments. The primary aim of biographical fiction is to provide readers with a deeper understanding of the life and experiences of real-life people through creative storytelling. One of the key features of biographical fiction is that they are based on real people, events, and places. Authors conduct extensive research on their subjects to ensure accuracy and authenticity, but they also use their imagination to fill in the gaps where the historical record is incomplete or where creative license is needed to enhance the story. Robert Graves's I, Claudius (1934), Dee Brown's Wave High the Banner (1942), and Irving Stone's The Agony and the Ecstasy (1961) are highly regarded examples.

Common Elements

Genuine historical characters and period
Reimagined historical details

Fictional narrative

Benefits of Reading

Provides readers with insight into real-life characters

Explains to readers the driving motives and traits of characters

Helps readers to understand the historical context surrounding characters

Modern Literary Examples

Norman Mailer

Girl with a Pearl Earring (1999) by Tracy
Chevalier
The Great Lover (2009) by Jill Dawson
Helen of Troy (2006) by Margaret George
The Immortal Life of Henrietta Lacks
(2010) by Rebecca Skloot
The Invention of Wings (2014) by Sue
Monk Kidd
Josephine Baker's Last Dance (2018) by
Sherry Jones
Kiss and Tell (1995) by Alain de Botton

Ride the Wind (1982) by Lucia St. Clair
Robson
Schindler's List (1982) by Thomas
Keneally
The Sunne in Splendour (1982) by Sharon
Kev Penman