Intellectual Freedom Guidelines

- Barton Library believes in the rights of all library users as outlined in the American Library Association's Library Bill of Rights and supports the Core Values of Librarianship and the Freedom to Read Statement.
- The Library also values honesty and ethics as stated in the Higher Learning Commission's Criterion 2.D.
- The Library chooses books and materials, both print and online, that cover all sides of different subjects.
 - Because of this, some materials in our collection might be seen as unusual or not popular by some people.
 - The Library aims to provide resources that show a variety of opinions and ideas, supporting the College's programs and the diverse backgrounds of students, faculty, and staff.
- The Library does not support any efforts to restrict access to materials and is committed to protecting the right to express ideas freely.
