

Occupational Safety & Health

Director Laura Pratt

BARTON
COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Occupational Safety & Health Field

Occupational Safety & Health goes beyond workplace compliance by focusing on preventing injuries, illnesses, and fatalities through the identification and control of workplace hazards. Safety professionals combine technical knowledge, leadership, and practical problem-solving skills to manage risk, support regulatory compliance, and protect workers across nearly every industry.

Manufacturing

Healthcare

Agriculture

Government

Construction

Energy

Transportation

Workforce Opportunities & Needs

A Career Field with Multiple Pathways.

Potential Careers: OSH Technician, Safety Coordinator, Safety Manager, Compliance Specialist, Safety Trainer, Risk Management Professional, Environmental, Health, and Safety Specialist.

$86,300	$90,150	12%	14,900
Kansas Median Salary	U.S. Median Salary	Projected Job Growth	Annual U.S. Openings

Barton's Response

Education that meets learners where they are.

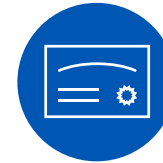

Flexible & Accessible

- Online & Classroom Learning Opportunities
- Stackable educational Opportunities
- Designed for traditional students and working professionals
- Skills that can be immediately applied in the workplace

Microcredentials

5 OSH Microcredentials

OSH Certificate 18 credit hours

Occupational Safety & Health Certificate

SAPP (Stand-Alone Parent Program) Options

Specialist in Safety & Health Construction Industry
Specialist in Safety & Health General Industry

OSH Associate in Applied Science 64 Credit Hours

Occupational Safety & Health Associate in Applied Science

Microcredentials

Launched August 2026

- Microcredentials are short term, flexible learning opportunities designed to build practical, career focused skills.
- Upon Completion, learners earn a digital badge that verifies their skills and knowledge and can be shared with employers.

Occupational Safety Foundations

Safety Investigation & Compliance Specialist

Environmental & Hazardous Materials Compliance

Industrial Hygiene & Exposure Control Specialist

Ergonomics & Human Factors Safety Specialist

BARTON

SAFETY & HEALTH

Questions?

Thank you!